

The Philosophy Department presents the 11th Annual Symposium

Philosophical and Scientific # Perspectives on Love

An interdisciplinary conference hosted by the Philosophy Department

Friday, February 9, 2007

4:30–6 p.m. "Love By All Accounts"

Eleonore Stump, Philosophy, St. Louis University
Stahr Auditorium, Stager Hall

Saturday, February 10, 2007

All-Day Symposium

Stahr Auditorium, Stager Hall

9:15–10:30 a.m. "Empathy, Evolution and Ethics"

William B. Hurlbutt, Bioethics, Neuroscience Institute,
Stanford University Medical Center

10:45–noon "Societies of Brains:

A Study in the Neuroscience of Love and Hate"

Walter J. Freeman, Neurophysiology, University of California, Berkeley

2:30–3:45 p.m. "Love and Intimacy"

Bennett Helm, Philosophy, Franklin & Marshall College

4–5:15 p.m. "The 'Matter' of Love:

Evolution, Religion, and the Internalization of Altruism"

Jeffrey Schloss, Biology, Westmont College